Contacting the GINETEX National Committee in your country

GINETEX is currently composed of 22 country National Members. Each of these National Committees, one GINETEX and to ensure the correct use of the care symbols in their national territory.

Thanks to GINETEX, national committees can grant the right to companies within their territory to reproduce and therefore responsible for care labelling in their own country.

GINETEX created and introduced the system of care symbols in the 1950's and has overseen its development ev worldwide. The GINETEX Technical Committee meets regularly.

The care symbols are an international trademark owned by GINETEX and registered with the World Intellectual P
National Committees, who in turn grant companies within their country the right to reproduce and use the symb
